Master of Music

Program overview

The Master of Music Program is a master's program specialized in music performance or composition. Consisting of five majors including Performance and Pedagogy, Composition, Conducting, Collaborative Piano, and Jazz, the MM Program provides great opportunities for students to study with the renowned Thai and international faculty members of the College. The program has been designed and revised from time to time to effective develop students' musical skills and knowledges, as well as to equip them with tools to become competitive both nationally and internationally.

In addition, the MM Program prepares and facilitates the graduates for further education in the College's Doctor of Music Program, the first of its kind in Thailand. With its clear international-oriented objectives, the Master of Music Program is an international program using mainly English languages (except for the courses on Thai and Oriental Music). Therefore, the applicants must be sufficiently proficient in English to ensure his/her success in studying in this international-standard program, as well as pursuing music careers in an international environment.
